About the Workshop

In recent years, the importance of forensic accounting has been growing rapidly. Forensic accounting is the use of accounting skills to investigate fraud, embezzlement and other irregularities concealed in the financial transactions. Albeit, in many cases, forensic accounting investigations are used in legal proceedings, but they are also used for compliance efforts and to prevent crimes. The need for forensic accounting arose because of the failure of audit system in the organizations as the organizations' internal and external audit failed to figure certain errors in their managerial systems. Forensic Accounting has been an important branch of study in Commerce, Management and other related professional courses. The new regulatory requirements in the domestic and foreign countries, increasing expectations of the stakeholders for more information, fast information and accurate information, problem of analyzing huge volume of financial information due to increase in the size of the business, increasing use of accounting information to evaluate the quality of governance and other financial decision making, widespread application of digital technology in accounting and auditing etc. have collectively given a new orientation to the teaching and research in accounting and other related areas. The application of forensic accounting tools and techniques in corporate, banking and other commercial organizations have undergone a qualitative change due the developments in the field of accounting. Therefore, forensic accounting has gained growing attention among the academicians and policy makers in the recent past. Keeping all this in view, Department of Commerce, Tezpur University is going to organize a One day Workshop on "Forensic Accounting Education in India". The workshop shall be immensely helpful for academicians, practitioners and students.
