Appeal to observe Earth Hour 2018

Dated: 23/03/2018

WWF-India, one of the largest conservation organizations in India has been celebrating the Earth Hour campaign since 2009 in India. Earth Hour is WWF's global initiative and the world's largest grass root movement for the environment where citizens around the world unite to take a stand against climate change by turning off non-essential lights for one hour. This year, Earth Hour will be observed on Saturday, 24th March from 8:30 p.m.- 9:30 p.m.

As a token of your support to the Global Earth Hour Campaign, we would like to request all members of TU to switch off all non-essential lights in our University campus including hostels and residences during the Earth Hour from 8:30 - 9:30 p.m. on 24.03.2018.

Further, as part of this year's theme- "Give Up to Give Back", you may think to give up one habit to fight climate change. A list is provided herewith.

Your heartfelt support to Earth Hour 2018 will help in the efforts to take a step forward to fight climate change and create awareness to reduce carbon footprint.

THINGS THAT YOU CAN GIVE UP

1. Give up single use of plastics
2. Give up one degree (Air conditioning): Even giving up something as small as a lower temperature in your office will make your spaces energy efficient and reduce your electricity bills and your footprint on the Earth.
3. Give up lonely car rides for your employees: Instead mark out one day each week as a Carpool Day.
4. Give up excess use of paper
5. Give up E-waste (old mobile phone, laptop or any electronic gadget)
6. Give up Wastage/ Spoilage
