Organized by

Department of Environmental Science in collaboration with
Teaching Learning Centre (TLC), Tezpur
University, Assam

Sponsored by

Ministry of Human Resource
Development,
Government of India

BACKGROUND

Teachers always face numerous problems in exposing students to new subjects or courses, mentoring and nurturing students' skill and handling their varied interests. Likewise, researchers also find difficulties in designing experiments, data handling, reporting and communicating the results. Research is an integral part of teaching in higher educational institutes. In this regard, such formal training is imperative to equip both teachers and researchers to overcome these challenges in an effective way. This one week-long workshop on "Teaching Methodology and Technical Writing" is intended to promote teaching and research-centric knowledge among the participants. The workshop is meant for teachers and researchers from all disciplines of Science, Humanities and Management.

COURSE CONTENT*

Outlines of the broad topics that will be covered during the course are as follows:

Teaching Methodology

- Methodologies used in teaching
- Lateral thinking in teaching
- Constructive approach

Technical Writing

- Research proposal /Report writing /Paper writing
- Statistical analysis and representation of data
- Interpretation of results
- Plagiarism

*Hands-on training on some selected topics will be held regularly.

IMPORTANCE OF THE PROGRAMME

This programme is focused on enhancing the perspectives of teaching and research methods. Some of the crucial areas of teaching are lesson planning, lateral thinking and use of constructive approach. Likewise, designing experiments, managing and analyzing experimental data are some of the important aspects of research. Hence, this programme aims to facilitate teachers and research scholars with specialized knowledge of teaching methodology and technical writing.

RESOURCE PERSONS

Resource persons will be from various backgrounds having expertise in the different areas related to the workshop.

COURSE MATERIAL

Short notes, slides and reference materials will be provided.
